Chapter 1 by Casey Morales

You never really know when you have a true friend there's a lot of fake and disrespectful people out there. Sometimes you just feel lonely and desperate to trust someone no matter what, cause its human we always make mistakes. A true friend will be there for you at all times through your life goals. No matter what the fight is they will always come back because they are truly the one who loves you. They make you feel as if yall were family. But "friends" are really hard to find. You don't always need them but they are helpful sometimes better then family. Many people can switch up on you, be shady, talk behind your back, be a backstabber. But once you truly find someone that wants to be with you and be there you know they are one of the special ones. You as well are special because no matter what you were sticking by that persons life and cared, loved, was therefor and that's important. Your gonna mean every single thing to them as if you were their other half, But if it doesn't feel that way they are very well a "friend" (someone that isn't really.) I find it really sad and stupid that people can do that to you but most people can do it for no reason and it hurts so much.
